Kolb and Dill Make Another Big Hit with a Five-Act Comedy.

Kolb and Dill, the German comedians of stage fame, have recorded another stupendous success in their film version of "Bluff," a five act comedy personally supervised and presented by Samuel S. Hutchinson, president of the American Film Company, Inc.

Given a story with a strong punch, the comedians, and the entire cast, including May Cloy and Thomas Chatterton, have given an excellent account of themselves at every point.

The inimitable comedy which has made these two famous is reflected on the screen, and their characterizations are especially appalling contrasted with the "quick thinking and acting" of the modern business "bluffers."

Throughout the five reels the love story is prettily carried, culminating in success and happiness as a reward for the goodness and generosity prevalent in the heart of the story characters.

who loves her with all the passion of a cave man have been cast ashore. Helen Gibson in "Death's Pathway," a railroad thriller, and an act of comedy are shown.

Sarah Bernhardt began her American tour this week at Pittsburgh before a huge audience. Reports say the box office for the week has been literally besieged.

The Thomas Ince studios offers its latest release, the "Triangle feature," called "The Jungle Child," in five acts at the Orpheum theater today. Dorothy Dalton, who appeared with William Hart in "Honey Bunches," is the star of the piece. In the play she interprets the role of a beautiful little Spanish girl lost in the South American wilds. The story is replete with magnificent scenes and abounds in love and romance and will meet with wide appeal to all the fans of the screen. "Maid Mad," a Keystone comedy in two reels, is a splendid added attraction.

FLORENCE WALTON, FAMOUS PLAYERS STAR IN PARAMOUNT PICTURES.

This dress is in vivid scarlet satin covered with layers of the same color tulle edged with silver. Diamond bows down front of bodice and over one shoulder. The petticoat is trimmed in silver lace and silver medallions. Emerald green band of ribbon around bodice.

The feature at the Grand again today is Theda Bara in "Her Double Life." This story affords Miss Bara many opportunities to portray the difficult role that has been chosen for her in a very effective manner. The added attraction is another episode of "The Crimson Stain Mystery." The Paramount Bray cartoons are also on this bill.

Norah Lamson, who for several seasons was with Julia Marlowe, has obtained the rights to Paul Armstrong's playlet, "The Heart of a Thief."

"The Isle of Love," a five act Mutual masterpicture, de luxe edition, with beautiful Gertrude McCoy in the leading role, is the feature at the Bijou theater today. This picture is notable for its diversity of scenes. Life is depicted upon the stage of a New York theater, at a quiet fishing village, in a fashionable hotel, aboard a rich clubman's yacht, and upon an uninhabited island where the heroine and the man

Gladys Hulette, the Thanouser star, has nearly completed "Her New York," a story by Agnes C. Johnson and directed by O. A. C. Lund. In this photoplay, Miss Hulette has a vehicle even more dramatic than "The Shine Girl," or "Prudence the Pirate," and with as many little human touches Mr. Lund has produced splendid New York scenes.

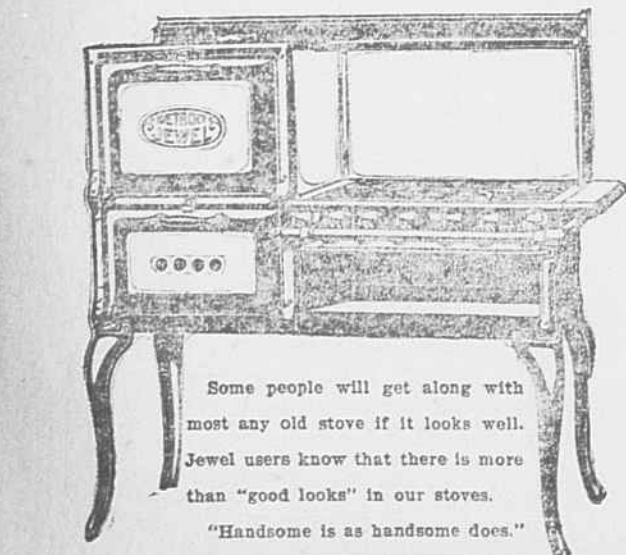

The Shuberts are to produce a romantic Viennese operetta called "Lien-tenant Gus," by the composer of "The Blue Paradise."

The opera in which Fritz Schell will appear, under the management of her husband, George Anderson, is called "Husband's Guaranteed."

Japan's most expert wrestlers are men who have inherited their ability from ancestors who made wrestling a profession for generations.

Cuba annually imports about 500,000,000 feet of lumber.

REBUS ADDRESS PUZZLE TO CLERKS

Letter Has Drawing for Direction, but Postmaster Finally Solves It.

CHESTER, Pa., Oct. 21.—Postmaster Nelson and his entire staff of clerks tried to puzzle out a mysterious address in the form of a drawing on an envelope of a letter mailed at the local postoffice.

Assistant Postmaster Jones thinks he solved the mystery of the drawing, which shows a man walking with an umbrella in a heavy mist; a large star with the word "Mar" printed in it and the words "that" and "nearly" printed alongside of the star. The word "Sim" is printed below, and close to the word "Sim" is a picture of a bottle of ink.

"Her name is Miss Martha Smink," declared Jones. "Now for the address." Apart from the first section of the rebus the artist had drawn a picture of the sun, along side which was a picture of a strawberry, which Mr. Jones said meant "Sunbury," and trailing along after these appeared a penholder, a desk, a furniture van, an eye and the letter "A."

"That's easy," declared Jones. "This letter is for Miss Martha Smink, of Sunbury, Pennsylvania."

The letter was sent to Sunbury with instructions to the postmaster there to hunt up Martha Smink and let her have it.

FINAL REST

Found in Waves of Bathtub by Woman, Who Dearly Loved the Sea.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Oct. 21.—The body of Mrs. Pauline Betyn, 20 years old, was found in the bathroom of her apartment.

For several years, her relatives say, she had been erratic mentally. Since girlhood she had been a splendid swimmer, and the sea seemed to exercise a spell over her so strong, so weird and so resistless, that those who loved her attempted to discourage her from visiting the ocean.

Recently, it was reported to the police, she had been so uncontrolled in mind it had been necessary to restrain her under the care of attendants. Recently her health had so improved she returned to the apartment.

Denied the ocean, she began to play for hours in the bathroom, dabbling in the water, apparently charmed by the sound of the splashing spray.

While alone she entered the bathroom and constructed a simple contrivance with paddles so arranged the paddles would move with the force of the water, and make eddies in the little pond in the tub.

Then she removed her clothes and entered the water. The revolutions of the crude water wheel excited a flow of baby waves. The young woman was gently buoyed. Her face was in the water, her body was swaying up and down the physical lullaby that was ecstasy.

When her relatives entered the little water wheel was still turning, the little waves were all lapping in the tub, the body was floating gently in the tide, and the face of the victim who loved the sea was transfused with an expression of delight.

RETURNS MONEY STOLEN YEARS AGO FROM FRIEND

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Oct. 21.—Mrs. D. T. O'Neill, whose husband keeps a store here, and has been in business for sixteen years, received a letter containing $12 from a conscience-stricken girl, who now lives at Williamsport, Pa. She wrote: "I enclosed find check for $12 to pay you for the purse I stole from you when you were Mary Brown and I worked with you in the store. I ask your forgiveness and if you request for more payment please send me word." Mrs. O'Neill returned the money, asking her to give it to the poor.

How Catarrh is Contracted. Mothers are sometimes so thoughtless as to neglect the colds which their children contract. The inflammation of the mucus membrane, at first acute, becomes chronic and the child has chronic catarrh, a disease that is seldom cured and that may prove a life's burden. Many persons who have this loathsome disease will remember having had frequent colds at the time it was contracted. A little forethought, a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy judiciously used, and all this trouble might have been avoided. Obtainable everywhere.—Advertisement.

PASSING OF THE NICKEL LOAF OF BREAD EXPLAINED

It is very difficult to change the custom of years, but there comes a time when even tradition must be swept aside ruthlessly if thereby an economic advantage can be secured.

The baking trade is now facing such a problem and on the courage and ability of the bakers to handle the situation depends the solvency of those engaged in the business.

Custom has long prescribed the five cent loaf which was based originally on the cost of material entering into it which was sufficiently low to afford the baker a varying, but on the average, a fair profit for his product.

Such a basis for the five cent loaf has ceased to be and in the minds of the most conservative will continue so indefinitely. Within a few months flour has advanced seventy-five per cent, lard seventy-five per cent, milk fifty per cent, sugar seventy-five per cent, eggs forty per cent, butter fifty per cent, sugar twenty-five per cent, gasoline ninety per cent, labor twenty-five per cent.

All of these commodities enter into the manufacture, sale and delivery of bread and their prices must be counted upon in figuring what the loaf costs the baker.

In the face of such tremendous advances it is sheer madness to adhere to old standards and traditions.

It is unnecessary to go into the causes of all of these advances, or to speculate on their duration. Chiefly they are due, in most cases, to the war in Europe, either directly or indirectly, also to the world's shortage in the wheat crop.

Be this as it may, it is a condition not a theory, that confronts the bakers, and they must either advance the price or discontinue business. In this emergency, he has in many places decided on a plan that will be advantageous alike to the consumer and himself and which, while it entitles him to obtain a fair and just return for his labor, gives the consumer the utmost possible value for the price he pays. The plan contemplates the abolition of the five cent loaf and the substitution of the ten cent loaf. There is a great economic waste incident to the manufacture and distribution of the five cent loaf.

The ten cent loaf is the most economical to manufacture and market and represents the maximum of value to the consumer. Economies in making and delivery are effected by it and it has been proved that there is a saving of $5 a thousand loaves in the manufacture of the larger unit, which means a great saving to the baker and enables him to give a greater value in the larger loaf.

Another advantage to the consumer is that the larger loaf does not dry out and become stale near as quickly as the smaller loaf which enables the smallest family to use it up while it is still fresh and palatable.

No reasonable minded person expects the baker to continue on with the old prices established years ago when prices of all material was less than half what it is now.

People generally know that the only article on which the price has not advanced is the daily bread, and it being reckoned by all as the staff of life, no one asks or expects the baker to furnish it without a fair return for his labor.

WASP STING

Kills Girl in Fifteen Minutes, Effect Resembling Bite of Rattlesnake.

SPOKANE, Was., Oct. 21.—Miss Cora Nelson, aged 21, school teacher and a graduate of the Lewis and Clark high school in the class of 1915, died of a wasp sting at her home seven miles west of Medical Lake.

The sting, back of her ear, had an effect similar to that of a rattlesnake bite, the alkali acting as a poison, according to Dr. J. Allen, of Medical Lake, who arrived at the Nelson home twenty minutes after the girl was stung and five minutes after her death.

Miss Nelson was particularly susceptible to the effect of wasp stings, as three years ago, she was rendered unconscious by one and was carried from a field to her home. The only actual witness to the tragedy was Miss Agnes Roberts, a school teacher, who was just driving in at the farm gate. Mrs. J. S. Nelson, the girl's mother, was inside the house. Both rendered her immediate aid, carrying her into the house where she lapsed into unconsciousness. She was in robust health, according to Dr. Allen. The sting showed no swelling and but a slight discoloration.
